PURPOSE: To establish support services and communicate the existence of resources that members of the Division can utilize when members experience declining job performance, self-destructive habits and dependencies, strained interpersonal relationships or other manifestations of stress.

POLICY: The Division of Police not only has the responsibility to meet the needs and expectations of the citizens they serve, but the Division also has a great degree of responsibility to its members to ensure that they are high functioning contributors to the protection of those citizens.

The law enforcement profession is demanding, challenging and often dangerous. Stress is a natural result of police work. It is our reaction to stress that is the key to our ability to deliver superior services to our citizens and the key to our own mental and physical health. Cumulative stress makes police officers more vulnerable to the normal pressures and traumatic events of life. Failure to manage this stress can have catastrophic consequences.

Therefore it is the policy of the Division of Police to have in place or provide access to resources that members may utilize to promote their mental wellness and resultant physical health.
