Overview
The City is requesting proposals from qualified organizations or individuals for the operations, management, and revitalization of Highland Park Golf Course (“Property” or “Highland Park”) located at 3550 Green Road, Highland Hills, Ohio 44122. Highland Park is currently a 36-hole golf course and clubhouse owned and operated by the City with landscape maintenance handled by a third-party vendor. If this RFP is awarded, operations of the Property shall be pursuant to a Qualified Management Agreement (as described in IRS Revenue Procedure 2017-13) to be negotiated with the City and subject to separate authorization from Cleveland City Council.

Vision
The City’s vision for Highland Park is for it to become a best-in-class golf course which celebrates its legacy as a course frequented by African American golfers on Cleveland’s east side. The City aspires to establish this as a tournament-ready course that is also a frontrunner in community impact and sustainability. The City aims for the course to continue its history of promoting diversity in golf by opening doors to the sport for new, young golfers from Cleveland and by honoring its past as a predominantly minority course. As Highland Park nears its centennial birthday (2028), this is an opportunity to elevate it as a premier public course for locals and as a destination for golfers from across the country. As such, the City is seeking innovative ideas to re-imagine the golf course for the next 100 years.

History
Course History and Legacy as a Minority Course
Highland Park opened in 1928. It is the only public golf course near the City’s east-side wards and has historically been a welcoming golf course for minority players in an overwhelmingly white sport. The Sixth City Golf Club (established in 1946) and Forest City Golf Club were two pioneering African American golf leagues which played primarily at Highland Park. The Sixth City Club’s annual Cleveland Holiday Open tournament, which began in the 1940s, drew big names such as Charles Sifford, Lee Elder, Charles Owens, Jim and Chuck Thorpe, Orville Moody, Gibby Gilbert, Nate Starks, Joe Louis, Jackie Robinson, Dick (Night Train) Lane, and Cazzie Russell over the years.

During the PGA Tour’s Cleveland Open in 1964 and 1965, the course saw golf greats like Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, and Tony Lema. This was the first professional tournament to offer a $100,000 purse. Highland Park also hosted the inaugural PGA Minority Collegiate Golf Championship in 1987, at which African American golf stars such as Lee Elder, Charlie Sifford, Calvin Peete, Jim Dent, and Renee Powell held free golf clinics for the community. Sifford, the “Jackie Robinson of golf” and first black golfer to play and win on the PGA tour, claimed it as his home course for a time. See Exhibits 6-8 for additional course history and historic images. It is essential that the Consultant respects and pays homage to this historical significance.

Recent Investment, Management, and Operations History
In 2011, the City secured an external management company to manage all aspects of the course’s management and operations. The City replaced the roof for $144,930 in 2013. Between 2015 and 2020, the City invested $300,000 to update the irrigation system on both courses, which are now wirelessly connected to a central terminal in the clubhouse. In partnership with the Northeast Ohio Regional Sewer District (NEORSD), the City also recently invested $150,000 in a new bridge at the first hole at the Mill Creek Crossing, part of a 2017 $1.7 million stream restoration project completed by NEORSD. These investments were aided, in part, from the issuance of tax-exempt municipal bonds. In 2018, the City began directly managing the administration, sales, and concession activities. of the golf course. Additionally, in 2018 and renewed until May 2023, the City solicited and entered into a contract with a landscape maintenance provider to maintain the golf course landscape.

Project Details

Requirements

The selected Consultant is expected to operate, manage, and revitalize Highland Park and its associated amenities as a best-in-class, tournament-ready facility that celebrates its legacy as a minority golf course, promotes diversity in the sport of golf, and embraces sustainability. The City is also willing to consider proposals which retain fewer (less than 36) holes of golf and/or repurpose a portion of the golf course.

This should be mutually beneficial relationship for both the chosen Consultant and the City. The City expects the Consultant to utilize the assets that it has at Highland Park, invest in their improvement, and develop a business model that allows all parties to benefit. The City will retain ownership of the property. The City is open to various business models that can achieve the goals set forth in this RFP but expects the Consultant to maintain Highland Park as a self-sustaining facility.
Qualified Management Agreement
Any agreement for the operation, management, and revitalization of Highland Park resulting from this RFP shall be a qualified management agreement, as fully described in IRS Revenue Procedure 2017-13.¹ Such an agreement will preserve the tax-exempt status of the City’s outstanding tax-exempt bonds used to finance improvements at Highland Park, and will preserve the ability of the Contractor (through the City) to finance future improvements at Highland Park with tax-exempt bonds. In addition, it is the City’s intent to preserve Highland Park’s exemption from local real property taxation by maintaining the golf course’s status as public property used exclusively for a public purpose.²

Timeline and Term of Agreement
The project is to be completed expeditiously, and the City expects the Consultant to begin operating, managing, and revitalizing Highland Park during the Spring of 2023. The term of the qualified management agreement between the City and the Consultant, including renewal options, can be no greater than 30 years.

Each Consultant, in preparing their proposal, should consider all applicable laws and available industry guidelines as applicable to open space, liability considerations, site development permits, public health standards, recreational operations, Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) access, the Property’s tax-exempt status, and the highest standards of maintenance of all facilities and equipment.

The response to the RFP, at a minimum, should include:

1. Executive Summary
The Consultant should include a brief introduction to the organization and an expression of interest in the operation and management of this Property.

The Consultant acknowledges that the City has no responsibility for any conclusions or interpretations made by the Consultant on the basis of information made available by the City. The City does not guarantee the accuracy of any information provided and the Consultant expressly waives any right to a claim against the City arising from or based upon any incorrect, inaccurate, or incomplete information or information not otherwise conforming to represented or actual conditions.

Highland Park Golf Course History
The Highland Park Golf Course opened in 1928 in suburban Highland Hills. It is the only public course near Cleveland’s East Side wards and has historically been one of the most welcoming courses for minority players. Its legacy goes back decades to when it hosted PGA Tour’s Cleveland Open tournaments in 1964-1965 as well as the National Minority Golf Championships from 1987-1997.

Unlike many golf courses in the area, the park gave African Americans an opportunity to participate in an overwhelmingly white sport. Playing on this course became an activity passed down from generation to generation. The Sixth City Golf Club, established in 1946, and Forest City Golf Club were two pioneer leagues of African American golfers which played primarily at Highland. In the 1970s, the Golf Digest magazine ranked Highland’s North Course the number one affordable, public course in the nation. During the winter, the course also allowed for sledding, cross country skiing and even dog sledding for Greater Cleveland residents.

In the 1930s and 40s, Highland Park Golf Course hosted the Ohio Golf Tournament. During the Cleveland Open in 1964 and 1965, the course saw greats like Palmer, Nicklaus and Tony Lema who won the tournament in 1964, capping a brilliant four-week winning stretch. The 1965 event was the first pro tournament to offer a $100,000 purse, setting a higher standard for PGA championships. Highland was the “winter home” of the PGA and the association’s first owned and operated public golf facility. Most aren’t aware that Cleveland native, Bob Hope first played golf on the Highland greens.

However, the course was even better known for hosting the PGA National Minority Golf championship for a decade. The founders’ goal was to elevate the game at minority colleges and universities by providing student-athletes with the opportunity to compete on a championship stage during an era when they were excluded from playing in many collegiate golf events.
After the Minority Golf championship moved to Florida in 1997, Highland launched a Cleveland Minority Scholarship tournament. These tournaments allowed for collegiate and amateur golfers to play as well as a celebrity minority golf team. The opportunity to play golf at minority colleges was often rare and so players would come from all across the country to compete. The program also included funding and scholarships for minority colleges to create golf teams in an effort to diversify the sport. These tournaments often received national attention on USA Today and Sports Illustrated.

The most famous African American player to play the course was Charles Sifford, known as the “Jackie Robinson” of golf. He even called Highland his home course for a time. Sifford was the first African American to attempt to qualify for a PGA Tour and win in 1975 and the first African American to be inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame. Just three months before Sifford’s death, President Obama awarded him the Presidential Medal of Freedom at the White House for his bravery and perseverance in fighting for racial justice. Tiger Woods acknowledged that Sifford paved the way for his career and so many other minority golfers.

Highland Park Golf course maintained its popularity into the 1990s and 2000s. When Highland Hills attempted to cut out nine holes of the course to expand a nearby cemetery, the City of Cleveland protected the historic course. Mayor Michael R. White hosted annual golf tournaments during the 1990s for the region to raise funds for the homeless and just in 2016, a project to restore a degraded and channelized section of Mill Creek was focused on the course.
